GET READY NOW FOR THE BIG REPUBLICAN RALLY SATURDAY

BEVERIDGE GAVE OLD HOME TALK

Or at Least That is What the Senator Pleased to Term His Clever, Brief Address.

A BIG CROWD GREETED HIM

Famous Orator and Statesman Came on His Special Train—Notes of Meeting and Trip.

The Republican hall was not large enough to hold all the people who wanted to hear Senator Albert Beveridge when he came to Rushville this morning. Despite the early hour there was an enthusiastic crowd on hand and it was as good natured as it was large. The meeting developed into one of those friendly kind like several women have after their husbands are off to work in the morning. Just a talky affair; everybody in good humor and not the slightest offense taken even by the bitterest partisan.

In view of the fact that our senior senator has traveled all over the country and made several hundred speeches he was in good voice. At the outset he declared he did not intend to deliver a political speech, but what he pleased to term "an old home speech." For the most part it was about his early life when he used to come to Rush county heralded as the "boy orator." Another important part of the brief address was the eulogizing of Capt. Gowdy and Nate Weeks. Before the senator had finished, the audience was so proud of Nate that they were ready to recommend him for a place in the President's cabinet or for a foreign consulship.

Senator Beveridge said he could not come back here without thinking of the old days when he began his public career. "There were such men as Capt. Gowdy, Nate Weeks, Mr. Kitchen, Mr. Green, Mr. Moses and a host of others," he said, "who took me, as it were, from the cradle and gave me my first start in politics. It was down to that grand old thoroughly American town of Milroy. I never will forget it. It was all new to me the way they started things off. Capt. Gowdy opened the meeting with a song, same as they do in church. I did the talking and the crowd with me did the exhorting. And those good old boys felt so good over the success of the meeting that they took me down to Milford, where I delivered another speech that night."

In the nicest way conceivable, Senator Beveridge pleaded for Republican votes. He said he believed the Democrats honestly tried to do the right thing, but every opportunity they have had they made a dismal failure. All the laws on the statute books favoring the American workmen have been put there by Republicans and every law enacted for fifty years, still in force, was written by Republicans. They have a way about them of doing things, he said. The senator plead with the wives and mothers to interest themselves in politics. He said if the men would sit around the fireside and discuss the issue with their wives and mothers, few mistakes would ever be made. If men would only consult their wives more in everything, he said, there would be fewer mortgages filed, fewer domestic mistakes made and all husbands would be better men.

At the conclusion of the meeting

many pressed forward to shake the hand of the senator and he was exceedingly well pleased with his reception here.

NOTES.

A reception committee composed of Nate Weeks, Ab Denning, Will Bliss, Homer Powell and Taylor Kitchen, went to Connersville early this morning and met the Beveridge special, accompanying it to this city.

Four automobiles were on hand at the station to carry the distinguished guest and his party to the place of meeting.

One of the nicest features of the senator's visit was the ovation tendered him by the school children at the Havens school building. Miss Ford had all the little ones lined up along the fence and they waved and cheered when Mr. Beveridge came whizzing by in an auto. He stood up and uncovered his head, waved to them.

At Connersville Senator Beveridge left the breakfast table to make a brief address to about eight hundred people. They had a band and drum corps there.

Senator Beveridge said that a vote for Senator Moore meant a vote for United States Senator Hemenway and meant a vote to further the policies of President Roosevelt and a vote to have a man in the upper branch of congress who would stand by William Howard Taft.

The mightiest cheer of all came when Beveridge mentioned the name of Watson. He said he was a brainy and capable man and as an orator and man of magnetic personality, had few if any equals in the entire country. Like every man who has been to Washington and knows the high regard in which Watson is held there, Beveridge said he was proud to be able to sing his praises. "Of the four hundred congressmen there, think of the signal honor won by Watson on account of his peculiar ability to fill that place—the leader on the floor, the whip of the House."

The senator concluded his speech by asking if there was a man in the house who intended to vote for Bryan and asked for one reason why he intended to vote that way. After waiting a few seconds, and getting no response, he suggested that maybe the people in Rushville were going to make it unanimous for Taft. He said: "Let's make a clean sweep of it and vote the ticket straight all the way through."

Many women and young ladies attended the meeting. The fact that the senator married an heiress attracted many while again the Indiana statesman always had a strong following among the women of the State.

Two of the brainiest young men Indiana ever produced were in Rushville today, Beveridge and Ade.

Sam Blythe, who was one of the interesting passengers aboard the Beveridge special, writes besides some of the cleverest political dope in the country, the department "Who's Who and Why" for the Saturday Evening Post each week.

Capt. W. E. English of Indianapolis, who was through here with Taft last Friday evening, was on the Beveridge Special.

Several prominent magazine writers were on the special, including a staff man of Collier's Weekly. Typewriters and every convenience are provided for the newspaper men on the train.

The women and girls came out today with their hair frizzled and dangling about on their forehead. Breakfast dishes were left unwashed and the house "just littered" while the women, bless their hearts, came out to hear the doctrines of Republicanism expounded.

A bright young chap of three years, carrying a flag, marched gallantly down the aisle when Beveridge was speaking. A number of people noted it, as did the senator, and pointing to the little fellow he said: "That's what we like to see in this country, the boy with the flag and patriotism."

The senator hit off on a happy vein when he spoke of his new son, saying "I thought I would not let you people down here in the Sixth district do all the raising of children."

J. Feudner left here on the special and spent the day touring the southern part of the State with the senior senator. Tom J. Geraghty of the Daily Republican, accompanied the party from Connersville to this city.

Capt Gowdy would have enjoyed the meeting this morning. It was just the sort that the captain and past master of politics thinks is conducive of producing votes. He is indisposed at his home in North Perkins street.

John T. McCutcheon, the Chicago cartoonist, who is considered the best in the country, was obliged to leave the train last night in Richmond and return to the Windy City.

Clearing House Note—George Ade cashed a check at a local bank today. Will Bliss vouched for him.

Thomas Shipp, formerly secretary to Senator Beveridge, now secretary of the Forestry Bureau at Washington, was on the train wearing a sombrero. He is a cousin of Clifford Lee, formerly of this city.

John Haynes, secretary to the senator, was the busiest man in the lot. He goes around with a watch in his hand, always insisting on making the schedule—and always failing.

Clifford Lee, formerly of the Daily Republican, was the staff man of the Indianapolis Star on the train. He addressed the overflow meeting from a motor car before the party left.

Beveridge was a "brief" guest of Mrs. J. K. Gowdy and Mrs. Robert Mansfield and rode with them to the station after the meeting. He was previously acquainted with them.

James Julian of Washington, D. C., representing an eastern newspaper, ran across a former schoolmate when he came to town today. Miss Judith Hobson of the Tron millinery store, and Mr. Julian were raised together, but today was their first meeting since they left high school in Martinsville six years ago.

The homes along Third street were beautifully decorated for the occasion.

Mrs. Albert Beveridge, wife of the senator, is a niece of Mrs. Marshall Fields of Chicago. They were married abroad last year. Mrs. Beveridge has connections here, being a second cousin of Mrs. Jet Parker of North Harrison street.

George Ade, the humorist, is the personification of modesty. In New York and Chicago, he is pointed out as he walks along the street and creates as much attention as would the President of the United States. But he always seeks the background. Everybody was on the qui vive to see him today. When the party piled aboard the autos provided for them

he insisted on walking down town. He waited outside the hall until the meeting began and then slipped in a side door. When told that many people wanted to see him and asked by a local man to go up on the stage and take a seat he shook his head and quietly sneaked out the door again. On the train coming over from Connersville he told a story about Capt. Gowdy holding a meeting once in Newton county, Ade's home. It seems as if Gowdy had been heralded as a great orator and hundreds came out to hear him. The school house was packed and jammed on the night of the meeting and everybody had their mouth and ears set for a treat in political speaking. When the chairman began to tell the people "We have with us here tonight one of the foremost orators in Indiana, etc.," Capt. Gowdy quietly slipped over to him and tapping him on the shoulder said: "I thank you, my dear sir, but you are barking up the wrong stump, I'm no speaker; my fort is singing." The chairman was a shrewd chap and quickly turned the lauding into a different vein, speaking of the bird-like, clear, flute toned voice which Mr. Gowdy possessed and that he traveled over two hundred miles that he might sing for them. Smiling, Gowdy arose but did not know what to say. He was deeply chagrined and did not want to spend the evening apologizing, for he was scouting for votes. Of a sudden he broke into the battle song, "Glory, Glory Halleluia," and waving his arms in rhythm to the strains of the old song the crowd happily joined in. The evening was spent in singing one song after another. Not one word was said about politics. And wonder of it all, the county—and especially that particular community—rolled up a bigger Republican majority than ever before in its history.

GIRL FIRES AT FLEEING MAN

Burglar Discovered in the Bebout Home is Routed by Fearless Girl.

NO NEED OF THE POLICE

Said the Girl When Neighbors Came in Answer to Response—The Bulldog Purchase.

The Bebout girls who occupy the old homestead in North Morgan street, have a brand new bull dog. They purchased it of their brother, Silverton Bebout, yesterday. Of course there was a reason. Here is the story:

Last Sunday morning at an early hour the girls were awakened on hearing unusual noises about the house. A few breathless seconds and they became aware that burglars were in the house as they could hear them prowling about. One of the girls made a noise to apprise the intruder that they were awake and it had the desired effect for they heard them leave the house in a few seconds.

Maverne Bebout then arose and secured her revolver which she kept in the dresser drawer. Running to a window and pulling back the blind she saw one of the fellows hurrying across the side yard. She raised the window and fired one shot at the fleeing marauder. The shot did not take effect, but it surely frightened the fellow into doing a hundred yards at a ten second gait.

Neighbors were aroused and when they came they suggested sending for the police, but the plucky girl who fired the shot remarked that she did not think they would soon be bothered by the same parties. Local talent is suspected and it is thought they were trying to get in another night's work before the blood hounds became active.

PICTURESQUE WAS CEREMONY

Of the Humes-Allison Nuptials Celebrated in Indianapolis Last Night.

SEVERAL FROM HERE ATTEND

Ceremony Was Performed at Home of the Bride—Groom a Rush County Product.

Regarding the marriage last night of Dr. Dolph Humes, son of John C. Humes of Noble township, Rush county, the Indianapolis Star today says:

"The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Allison on Park avenue was the scene of a most picturesque wedding ceremony last evening at 8:30 o'clock. The bride was their daughter, Miss Lila Allison, and the bridegroom, Dr. Charles D. Humes. The spacious rooms were filled with a large number of friends, who gathered to witness the ceremony, which was pronounced by the Rev. Frank O. Ballard, pastor of Memorial Presbyterian church. A harpist and violinist played a charming program of bridal airs for an hour before the time for the ceremony. At the appointed hour the strains of the "Lohengrin Wedding March" were taken up and continued as the wedding party started down the stairway and entered the ceremony room. Miss Lizette Krauss walked first in the bridal party, and she was followed by Mrs. Frank Preston, sister of the bride, who acted as matron of honor; then the bride with her father, who gave her away. The minister, bridegroom, and best man, Mr. Cornelius O'Brien, of Lawrenceburg, entered from the side room and met the bride party in the living room. The appointments for the ceremony room were entirely in green and white. The broad fireplace was simply massed with the tall palms and ferns. Set in the greenery were white tapers in cathedral candlesticks. The vases and wall pockets were overflowing with white chrysanthemums and trailing vines, in the openings were curtains of autumn foliage artistically arranged. In the adjoining rooms were immense clusters of the yellow chrysanthemums arranged in baskets and flower urns. The dining room was a bower of the yellow fall flowers and ferns. For the center of the polished table there was a large French basket of the yellow chrysanthemums, studded with maidenhair ferns and yellow tapers burned in handsome crystal holders. The buffet was trimmed with the ferns and the chandelier festooned with strands of Southern smilax. The stairway was draped with garlands of green foliage. During the reading of the service the music was changed to "Call Me Thine Own," a favorite selection of the bride. The aisle for the wedding party to pass through was made by Miss Ruth Allison, her sister, and Mr. Benjamin Humes of Rushville, nephew of the bridegroom. The bridal costume was a beautiful white satin empire gown, trimmed with hand embroidery and princess lace, and the long satin sleeves finished with princess lace. The tulle veil was fastened with a cluster of valley lilies. The bride carried an armful of bride roses, tied with streamers of smilax and white tulle. Mrs. Preston wore her wedding gown of white satin and princess lace and carried a great arm bouquet of long-stemmed white chrysanthemums.

AFTER THE GRIPPE Vinol Restored This Man's Strength

"Several years ago I was attacked by a severe case of grippé, which left me with a hacking cough, soreness in my chest, and bronchitis. I took nearly every kind of cough syrup sold on the market, besides medicine given me by physicians.

I received no permanent relief until my druggist asked me to try Vinol, and after taking three bottles I was entirely cured.

I believe Vinol to be the greatest blessing ever offered to the public, as it does what is claimed for it." R. E. R. Hicks, Maplesville, Ala.

The reason Vinol cures chronic coughs, colds and pulmonary troubles is because it contains tonic iron and all the healing and body building elements of cod liver oil but no oil.

Vinol is also unexcelled as a strength builder for old people, delicate children, weak and run-down persons, and after sickness.

Vinol is sold in Rushville by F. B. Johnson & Co., Druggists.

BRYAN SLOGAN HAS 'STRANDED'

"Shall the People Rule?" Has Faded Out as an Issue.

NOMINEE TAFT'S WORD FOR IT

"The Truth Is," Declares the Candidate to a Hudson River Audience,

"That the Proposition That the People Had Not Ruled Up to This Date Met With So Much Ridicule That It Has Faded Out as an Issue."—Great

Crowds Greet the Nominee in Industrial Centers Along the Hudson.

Troy, N. Y., Oct. 28.—The industries of the cities and towns which line the banks of the picturesque Hudson from Greater New York to Troy were made the text of the speeches of W. H. Taft to the people of these cities and towns.

Yonkers smiled on the big form of the Ohioan through a heavy shower. He talked at length to as many as could get into the largest theater, and then addressed those who had stood waiting in the rain, whose number was even greater. Mr. Bryan spoke in Yonkers the day before, and, saying that he understood his distinguished opponent had charged that the Republican party had done nothing for labor, Mr. Taft first asserted that the policies of the Republican party had been chiefly devoted to the interests of labor, and then pointed out that the protective policy made possible the sugar refining industry, the chief enterprise of the city.

"Certainly Mr. Bryan was a bold man to advocate such views in a town like Yonkers," continued Mr. Taft, "which I believe is one of the greatest manufacturing towns in proportion to its size in the state of New York, and is dependent upon the protective system."

As a sample, Mr. Taft said, of the "utterly impractical or destructive character of Mr. Bryan's recommendations with reference to economic reforms," he would cite what Mr. Bryan would do with the Yonkers sugar refinery, assuming for argument that the refinery was in a "trust." Mr. Taft said:

"He would take off the differential on sugar, that protection which is necessary to enable us to have any sugar refineries in this country. It would cause the establishment of refineries in Germany, and all of your population here dependent on this refinery would be affected. And not only would it destroy the trust, but with it the independent refineries."

"The Republican party is just as much opposed to monopoly as the Democratic party," announced Mr. Taft later. "It passed and enforced the anti-trust law. It believes in going directly at the evil of monopoly by punishing men for continuing it, rather than by destroying the industries and the great combinations of capital that have much utility, and are of such benefit to the wage-earners. It believes in stamping out the evil and not stamping out the corporation."

Tarrytown, Peekskill and Fishkill Landing listened in the rain to short speeches delivered by the candidate from the rear of his car. The dampness did not seem to dull the ardor of the citizens. When the Taft special reached Poughkeepsie, the rain had just ceased and the sun came out brightly. He was driven up town to the Collingwood Opera House, which was crowded to the very doors. Judge Taft got inside with much difficulty, after which the doors closed on most of the members of his party, including Job Hedges, who was to help the candidate in the speaking. Turning to the big crowd outside, Mr. Hedges employed his time in optimistic predictions as to what such enthusiasm would result in next Tuesday.

A class of girls from Vassar college tried to "get" Judge Taft's speech in shorthand, and an enthusiast in the gallery attracted brief attention by shouting, "He surely wears the smile that won't come off."

"It will still be there next Tuesday," rejoined Judge Taft, and in his hope the audience seemed to concur. Here the Republican candidate reverted to Mr. Bryan's issue, "Shall the people rule?"

"Shall the people rule?" has stranded," he declared. "The truth is that the proposition that the people had not ruled up to this date has met with so much ridicule that it has faded out as an issue."

BRYAN IN BROOKLYN

Pat McCarren Meets Candidate at the Bridge.

New York, Oct. 28.—Winding up his remarkable campaign in and about Greater New York, William J. Bryan was whirled 115 miles by automobile in Manhattan and Brooklyn yesterday and last night and made eight speeches between the hours of 6 and 12 o'clock. In New York he was accompanied by Tammany Leader Chas. W. Murphy. Arriving at Brooklyn bridge, he was met by Senator Patrick H. McCarren, the Democratic leader of Kings county. Lieutenant Governor Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler's campaign for governor coincided with Mr. Br an's itinerary both in Manhattan and Brooklyn, and while he in one place was pleading for loyal support of the national ticket, Mr. Bryan at another was urging votes for the state candidates from governor down, and for the Democratic nominees for congress.

Mr. Bryan made eighteen speeches during the long and tiring day, and everywhere he went—plowing at times through mud and rain in a rush to keep his many engagements—he was greeted by some of the largest and most enthusiastic audiences of his country-wide tour. The Democratic candidate's eventful day began at 3 a. m., when he addressed the night-workers from the steps of the city hall, at the most unique political meeting ever held in a presidential campaign. Then followed a Broadway meeting at 10 o'clock and a forenoon trip to Brooklyn to address an audience of laboring men in Wallabout market square. From Brooklyn Mr. Bryan hurried across to Long Island City, then to Jersey City, where three speeches ended the New Jersey campaign. Back in New York city again, Mr. Bryan was the guest of the College Men's Democratic club, and then with Mr. Murphy was hurried up town for two Harlem meetings. Six meetings in Brooklyn, the principal one at Clermont avenue rink, brought the day's work to a close. Although he had had but two hours' sleep out of forty-eight, Mr. Bryan spoke with all his characteristic vigor and good humor.

In all of his speeches Mr. Bryan warned the working men against traitors among them. He asserted that every laboring man who votes the Republican ticket would vote to repudiate the things that labor demanded in the Denver platform. He held up Mr. Taft as the enemy of labor, and assailed him and President Roosevelt at every opportunity. Mr. Bryan's reference to the guarantee of bank deposits brought shouts of approval at all of his meetings. Lieutenant Governor Chanler shared everywhere in the welcomes that were accorded to Mr. Bryan.

In his principal Brooklyn speech, delivered at the rink, Mr. Bryan first discussed publicity of campaign contributions. "The people have been cheated, the voters betrayed," he said, "because the Republican organization has given the promise in advance that the people shall pay back through legislation the money that has been contributed." The Democrats, he declared, wanted to inaugurate a new era in politics, and he said he was proud to be connected with that movement. With dramatic effect and amid great cheering, he added:

"My friends, you may vote me up or you may vote me down; you may elect me or you may defeat me, but the time will come when this country will enjoy the relief that we now try to bring, and when that time comes and politics is purified and elections and canvasses are made honest, whether I am living or dead, history will not deny me credit for the part I took in this crusade for new politics."

Newspapers Will Have to Look Elsewhere For Scare.

Sofia, Oct. 28.—The Bulgarian government has informed the representatives of the foreign powers here of its acceptance of the principle of paying compensation to Turkey, which has been the burden of persistent diplomatic representations during the past fortnight on the part of all the great powers.

As a further step in the direction of peace, 60,000 reservists were discharged today, leaving the army at its normal strength of 60,000. The government within a day or two will send a plenipotentiary to Constantinople to negotiate a treaty with Turkey. It is believed that by these steps Bulgaria has done its utmost to clear the situation and conciliate opinion abroad. The Austro-Hungarian foreign minister has also indicated a yielding attitude on the part of Austria, which may aid materially in the preservation of peace.

SLUSH FUND TALE DENIED BY SIMS

Secretary of State Says Mr.
Kern's Charges Are Untrue.

TRYING TO BLIND THE PEOPLE

Acting Chairman of the Republican State Committee Declares That in Making the Charge That He Brought a $100,000 "Slush Fund" Into This State From Chicago, Mr. Kern Is Merely Trying to Throw Dust Into the Eyes of the People to Blind Them to What Is Being Done by the Democrats.

Indianapolis, Oct. 28.—Concerning the direct charge made by John W. Kern, Democratic nominee for vice president, speaking Tuesday at Tipton, that Fred A. Sims, secretary of state and acting chairman of the Republican state committee, brought from Chicago to Indianapolis, Sunday, a "slush fund" of $100,000 to be used to carry Indiana, Mr. Sims late last night gave out a statement for publication declaring that Mr. Kern's charges are not only untrue, but probably were "made for the purpose of attempting to cover up from the people the large contributions the brewers have made and will make, for the benefit of the Democratic ticket in Indiana." Sims declared further that the Republican organization has at no time received any money from trusts or corporations, and that Mr. Kern is "merely trying to throw dust into the eyes of the people to blind them to what is being done by the Democrats."

KERN IN INDIANA

Vice Presidential Candidate Greeted Old Neighbors.

Decatur, Ind., Oct. 28.—The second day of the campaign of John W. Kern by special trolley car through the state of Indiana, which is expected to consume most of the present week, ended with a big meeting in Decatur last night. Leaving Indianapolis at 7:30 in the morning, stops varying from ten minutes to an hour were made at Tipton, Kokomo, Logansport, Wabash and Huntington. The party included besides the vice presidential candidate, Senator T. P. Gore of Oklahoma, Congressman Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Rev. Sam W. Small of Atlanta, Ga., and other speakers. In every city through which he passed Mr. Kern was besieged by scores of old-time friends, who grasped his hand and greeted him by his given name. He was introduced to his audiences as "Honest John Kern, your old neighbor," or other terms indicative of long acquaintance.

In his Decatur speech Mr. Kern said that there were three methods by which the Republican party leaders hope to win. The first method, he said, is by the use of money, which is "being poured into their treasury out of the treasuries of every illegal monopoly in the land and out of the treasury of every protected corporation."

The second method, he said, was coercion, and the third threat of panic. "I am not afraid of their money," he continued, "because votes which are going to win the election for Bryan are votes which all the money in the world cannot buy."

"I am not afraid of coercion, because the men of America have come to know that they are sovereigns and that no power on earth has a right to coerce them."

The speaker then referred to the history of Nicholas Biddle and his defiance of President Andrew Jackson in 1831 and of the defeat administered the money power in the succeeding election, which defeat he said brought relief from domination of the money power for forty years.

"May God give you men of Indiana," he continued, "a new baptism of patriotic power that you may go to the polls on Tuesday and strike a blow for the liberty for which your forefathers fought."

Another incident of the day was Mr. Kern's speech at Tipton, in which he charged the Republicans with bringing $100,000 "slush" money into the state—the contributions of illegal combinations. This campaign fund, he said, was taken to Indianapolis last Sunday by Fred A. Sims, the active manager of the Republican campaign.

Slain by His Own Gun.

Alexandria, Ind., Oct. 28.—Glen Barwick, twenty-six years old and unmarried, was accidentally killed on his father's farm, seven miles northeast of here. In company with his father, James Barwick, and his brother Wesley, he was at work with a wagon in the field, and had taken a shotgun with him, expecting to kill rabbits. As he was driving toward the barn some hawks flew over him, and he reached back in the bed of the wagon for the gun and pulled it toward him by the muzzle. The hammer caught on an obstruction and the gun was discharged. The full load entered his shoulder, penetrating the lung and causing instant death.

Prince Henry of Prussia spent several hours in the air as the guest of Count Zeppelin, who made an ascension in his remodeled airship.

SOME OPINIONS OF PEERLESS ONE

Well Known Democrats Once Spoke
Their Minds Concerning
Mr. Bryan.

IS HE NOW A CHANGED MAN?

In Letter of Acceptance Says Time and Events Have Confirmed His Faith in Principles He Has Advocated for Twelve Years—Is He Safe and Sane Now?

In 1896 Mr. Bryan uttered these words:

"I want you to understand that in this great contest for free silver I am enlisted, not for a year, not for four years. I am enlisted for the war, no matter how long that war may last.
I shall not cease to fight until the gold standard, which has cursed every nation that ever had it, is driven out of the United States across the ocean and back to the old world where it belongs."

And again he said:

"While I do not want to prevent Gold Democrats from leaving the party, we do want them to take their baggage with them and not expect to come back. We want them to understand that it is going to be easier for them to stay in the party than to come back after they have stained their hands in the sins of plutocracy."

In his acceptance speech he said that time and events had only confirmed his faith in the principles he had advocated for twelve years.

His opinions were condemned in 1896 not only on account of his financial heresies, but on account of his assault on the courts of the country and general dangerous attitude as an agitator. If he was dangerous then is he not dangerous now. If he is the same now as then how can such men as Burke Cochran, Henry Watterson, Charles L. Jewett, John W.
Holtzman and others support him in this campaign? Are they honest and sincere now? If so they were wrong in 1896 and Bryan was right. Burke Cochran spoke in this state for Bryan last week. He says he is supporting Bryan because Bryan is the best man the Democrats can put up, although he says Taft is the best equipped man in the county for president.

Burke Cochran on Sept. 9, 1896 said
this of Bryan:

"The assault led by Mr. Bryan on America's honor and industry is fraught with such danger that I shall vote for Major McKinley as the most effective method by which I can aid in preventing its success."

In September, 1896, Sterling R. Holt resigned as chairman of the Democratic state committee. In commenting on his action he said:—

"Directly after the Chicago convention these free silver cranks organized for the purpose of putting me out, and as long as that fight continued I had no intention of resigning. But after a while they quit on that and commenced hugging me and I could not stand that. Not only myself, but every one of the eight members of the committee that ever thought of sound money has been vilified and abused and our loyalty questioned on every occasion."

September 26, 1896 at Columbus,
Ind., Charles L. Jewett denounced Bryanism and declared that the Democratic party was not big enough and capable enough to manage this big country. After reviewing the instability and incapacity of the Democratic party during the previous four years
he then said:

"But the degradation and humility of the party was yet to occur. It came and has increased with appalling swiftness until today those who best loved and most earnestly strove for the success of that organization are appalled to see into what unworthy hands the organization has passed and to what ignoble and treasonable purposes its forces are being applied."

In the Indianapolis Star of May 15, 1906, John W. Holtzman, ex-Democratic Mayor of Indianapolis said:—

"Yes, Bryan is coming here to make an ass of himself again. If the Democrats don't keep that man Bryan out of Indiana they will never carry the state."

Sterling R. Holt, prominent Democrat and ex-state chairman, said on July 6, 1907, in the Indianapolis Star:
"The Democratic party will not nominate Bryan. It has too much sense to do that. He is a back number."

James S. Keach, Democratic city chairman in 1905, said in the Indianapolis Star, on Nov. 4, 1896:

"I rejoice in the defeat of Bryan."
On July 6, 1907, in the Indianapolis
Star, Keach said:

"I do not think Mr. Bryan is a proper man to be president, and I believe the party makes a mistake to waste any time on him."

But think of Henry Watterson, the fearless editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, eating crow! "Henri" is now out for Bryan in order to be "regular." But read the following utterances when he was sober and in his right mind.

The Courier Journal, Aug. 26, 1896,
had this to say of Mr. Bryan:

"The fierce light that beats upon a presidential candidate is bringing out the weaknesses and absurdities of Mr.
Bryan's public career with a vengeance. No matter under what guise he presents his views on governmental politics, the same communistic principles are always apparent. That any party should have stooped to take up such a candidate with such crazy-quilt ideas of political economy is hardly more disgusting than alarming. What would Jefferson or Hamilton or the other great statesmen of the revolutionary period think if they were informed that this intellectual whippers-napper this puling infant of logic would one day be deemed worthy of a seat at the same table with them?"

Again, Mr. Watterson, in his paper
Jan. 15, 1907, said:

"As far as the Courier-Journal is concerned it will support no man for office who has the smell of Altgeldism or Tillmanism upon his garments, or whose boots carry one speck of Populist mud, either at the heel or the toe.

A short horse is soon curried, and this 16-to-1, go-as-you-please, stick-in-the-mud, free-silver short horse is very short; indeed, as a matter of fact, very little short of a jackass."

Nov. 4, 1896, Mr. Watterson said:

"Bryan is beaten—ingloriously and overwhelmingly. So closes the great era of national peril which has menaced our government. So lift the clouds of flatism and repudiation which lowered above the land in ominous threat of dishonor and disaster.
So breaks the sun of a new dawn upon our manhood proven, our integrity vindicated, our intelligence victorious, our institutions impregnable. Thank God! In the name of a long-suffering people, thank God!"

INDIANA'S GREATEST NEED.

"Get Watson's scalp" is the terse command the Indiana brewery trust has sent down the line among the saloon men and their friends. Who votes against Watson votes for the brewers. If the beer men should win, it would mean that the people will not rule again in this state for many years. In small village and big town, wherever there are saloon men, the beer makers and beer sellers will dictate who shall hold office locally or represent the community in the state legislature. The state will be gerrymandered this winter to make sure the power of the brewers for years. County prosecutors and county judges will be elected by the saloon men, and they will choose men who will permit them to keep on violating the closing and Sunday laws.

The liquor men fear the election of Jim Watson as governor, knowing well that with him in the state house
the county local option law would not be repealed, the state institutions would be administered in their present good biartisan, economical and efficient manner, and—more important still—local authorities would be sustained and maintained in enforcement of the state laws governing the retail liquor business. Watson's election is a necessity, and as needful is the election of a Republican legislature to back him up.

Watterson on Bryan.

In 1896 Colonel Watterson of the Louisville Courier-Journal said of Mr.
Bryan:

"He is a dishonest dodger. He is a daring adventurer. He is a political faker. He is not of the material of which the people of the United States have ever made a president, nor is he even of the material of which any party has ever before made a candidate."

There is no alliance between Hearst and the Republican party. Hearst is playing a lone hand and our party is not in the game with him. Yet, he has done a service to the public in disclosing facts that fractured Foraker's good name as well as Haskell's and Kern's.
That those Standard Oil company's letters were stolen does not affect their truth.

MARSHALL AND LINCOLN.

Thomas R. Marshall's frequent references to Abraham Lincoln, in which Marshall takes the wholly untenable ground that Lincoln, were he alive, would be supporting the Democratic ticket this year, has had the effect to arouse a great deal of indignation among the older Republicans of the state who recall the days when the Democratic party of Indiana passed its time in reviling Lincoln and belittling his war policies. That Marshall should invoke the name of Lincoln for his own political advancement is resented generally. This resentment, too, has induced some investigation into Mr. Marshall's political antecedents. Mr. Marshall himself was not old enough to take part in the incidents surrounding the opening, the progress and the successful closing of the war of the rebellion, in which Abraham Lincoln was the towering and commanding figure. What Mr.

Marshall would have done, had he been of age at the time when Lincoln called for the support of all the loyal men in the north in order that the Union might be preserved, no one, of course, can say. But an examination into his family record along this line shows that his immediate paternal ancestor was anything but a Lincoln man. In fact, the old neighbors of Marshall the elder say that he thought much more of the Democratic party than he did of the country. One of these veterans said the other day, in commenting on Mr. Marshall's present adoration of Lincoln:

"Tom Marshall's father was a mighty good doctor, but he was the blanket Democrat in this part of the state. He passed his leisure time cussin' Abe Lincoln and making speeches, after the manner of Democrats in those days, declaring the war
to be a failure."

The old-timers whose minds are yet vivid with recollections of the days when the immortal Lincoln needed encouragement and support, are not holding it against Thomas R. Marshall that his father was not a "war" Democrat, but under the circumstances they are showing considerable disgust that Marshall should be slob-bering over Lincoln dead when his ancestors had nothing but abuse for Lincoln living.

BREWERS ENDORSE MARSHALL

Announce to "the Trade" That Their Interests Can Thus Be Most Directly Served.

Kentucky brewers, to protect their market for booze, have joined the Indiana brewers in their fight to elect Marshall governor and the Democratic legislative ticket. Following is a copy of a letter sent out by the George Wiedemann Brewery company of Newport, Ky., to Indiana saloon keepers:

"Gentlemen—You are no doubt thoroughly cognizant and at the same time deeply deplore the unwarranted attacks that are now being waged by the Prohibition forces upon the American public, in seeking to abridge their personal liberty and action (to be governed in the foregoing regard by standards which they have decreed therefore), thus striking at the very heart of the principles of liberty, so traditional and cherished of all American institutions, and in expression of your severe disapproval of such utterly un-American principles, you propose to lend your united support to defeat any procedure which will protect and advance such doctrines.

"The nominees of the Republican state ticket unalterably pledged or committed to the Prohibition forces, numerous planks in the platform of that party constituting indisputable evidence to that fact, within conditions having become aggravated by their open espousal of the doctrines of said forces; therefore, having placed themselves on record as proposing to advance the cause of Prohibition by lending their forces in the event of election for the enactment of extremely radical and pernicious legislation as affecting our common cause, and most importantly the abridgment of personal liberty, we are forced to meet the within issue for the protection of our common interests.

"The same can, in our opinion, be most directly served by putting forth all efforts at hand and available toward encompassing at the next election the defeat at the polls of the nominees referred to herein, and in return throw our united support to the forces of Democracy by voting for all the nominees as appearing on the Indiana state Democratic ticket. Therefore, kindly notify and cause to be notified formally, all the trade in general and particularly your patrons and friends of the foregoing; furthermore, request of the aforementioned parties to in return interest their friends and the public at large toward a united and most earnest support tending toward the satisfactorily achieving of the foregoing procedure."

WHY FARMERS SHOULD VOTE REPUBLICAN TICKET

During the last twelve years the value of farm land and the value of farm products have doubled. And while the prices of farm products have doubled, the cost of the things the farmers buy is no more than in 1896. The markets will show that groceries (such as the farmer buys), dry-goods, clothing and agricultural implements are no higher now than twelve years ago. Below will be found the quotations on farm products as found in the Indianapolis Journal of Oct. 5, 1896, and in the Indianapolis
News of Oct. 5, 1908. Let every farmer read and study these prices before casting his ballot in November. The prices of 1896 were the result of four years of free trade, incompetent Democratic rule. The prices of 1908 follow twelve years of protective tariff, wise and capable Republican administration. Which do you prefer? Here are the figures:

Wheat	68c.	$ 1.00
Corn	24c.	78 1/2c.
Oats	20c.	50 1/2c.
Hay	$9.00	12.25
Hogs (top)	3.40	7.00
Cattle (top)	4.65	7.00
Hens	6 1/2c.	9c.
Chickens	6 1/2c.	9c.
Turkeys	8c.	12c.
Butter	7 1/2c.	14c.
Eggs	14c.	21c.

It is cheering to note that Mrs. Bryan has come to Indiana with her husband, just as Mrs. Marshall accompanies her spouse wherever he goes.
Of course, there is a difference between the ladies and their solicitude over their marital mates. It may be passed by with the word that one is a typewriter and counselor, the other a needed guardian. Both are admirable and each has our profound respect.

Workingmen are realizing that the animadversions to Jim Watson voiced by Edgar Perkins and Sam Gompers in the name of organized labor are not worthy of more than passing attention. Mr. Watson's record in congress is known to all. It cannot be known too well. He has stood always for both employee and employer and for neither more than the other.

POLITICAL MEETINGS

Oct. 29.—James Gillispie and J. K. Gowdy at New Salem, 7:30.
Oct. 30.—James Gillispie and A. L. Gary at Gings, 7:30.
Oct. 31.—John L. Griffiths and James E. Watson at Rushville, 7:30. The Big Day.

Remember the Big Rally is next Saturday. Be on hand.

Republican voters are urged to vote early. In the forenoon if possible.

Mr. Bryan thinks he has answered Governor Hughes. As a matter of fact, he has only replied to him.

Mr. Bryan says that he is anxious that laboring men should not be compelled to work overtime. No laboring man has to work overtime under Democratic administrations.

The Rush county Democracy is trying to run a big bluff about the "clean election agreement," when its representatives have been in the field for over a week trying to buy votes. It is enough to make a horse laugh.

PROPOSITION IS NOT WELCOMED

Some of the Bankers of Sixth District See no Need of Organization.

CLAIM IT IS A SCHEME

Of Indianapolis Bankers to Regain Prestige Lost During Flurry Last Fall.

Richmond bankers are not very enthusiastic in respect to holding an organizational meeting of the bankers of the Sixth congressional district says the Richmond Palladium. The meeting has been postponed several times. Several of the local bankers state that to be affiliated with such an organization would not benefit them in the least as they belong to the State Bankers association which makes the district organization worthless.

Some even state in their denunciation of the organization that it is a move on the part of the Indianapolis bankers to get into Richmond and place money here.

It is a well known fact that in the recent stringency the Richmond banks received much more consideration from the banks at Chicago, New York and Cincinnati than they did from the Indianapolis banks. It was in this way the banks at the capital city got in poor standing with the smaller banks all over the country, and it is believed the proposal is a move to have the bankers of all the districts organize to promote the interests of good outside banks. The movement was started by a well known Indianapolis banker.

As to what the final outcome will be it is not known, but it is up to the bankers of this district to decide. Some claim that if the majority favor the holding of such meeting it will probably be held.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

BIGGER THAN TEDDY'S

(Greenfield Tribune.)

The three counties of Hancock, Henry and Rush combined will give Taft a greater majority than was given Roosevelt four years ago and Watson's majority will equal Hanly's. In Knightstown and Wayne township, Henry county, where the opponents claimed Watson will lose, the disaffection has died away and the number of temperance Democrats and Prohibitionists who will vote for Watson will more than balance the Republicans who will vote against him.

George Ade's Fable of the Acrobatic Vocalist

(Written by George Ade, the humorist, for his friend, John T. McCutcheon, the cartoonist. As both were in this city today, and an election is on, it is timely.)

Once there was a Spell-Binder with a Voice like an expensive Pipe-Organ and a full set of Chautauqua Gestures. A lot of Folks who liked to have their emotions Massaged listened to him and got all Worked Up.

"Gee, but he is a Swell Talker!" they said. "He ought to be President."

Then they held on to something so as not to Faint Away and said to the Song Bird of the Prairies, "Warble Again."

"No Cross of Gold," sang the Inspired One. "Free Silver—'Steen to One—Now and Forevermore!"

But even as they were listening, he pulled a Double Arab with a Twist in Mid-Air and landed on the other Side of the Street. They hurried after him, hungry for more Music.

"I love the Little Brown Brother," he chanted. "Anti-Imperialism—nothing can move me."

Saying which, he began doing Somersaults, and when they located him he was over in a Vacant Lot. They climbed the Fence and clustered about him once more, for they loved to be Entertained.

"Government Ownership!" rang out the Sweet Tenor Voice. "I stand here—like a Gibraltar."

Whereupon he did a Wilbur Wright and came down in the Next Block. When he got up and dusted his Clothes, the Faithful were there, Johnny-on-the-Spot.

"Song! Song!" they demanded.

Clearing his Throat and looking upward, he began to Render. "Guarantee the Bank Deposits!" he sang in a Voice choked with Grief. "Here I stand for all Time to Come."

"Oh, Rats, Bill!" spoke up his Admirers. "Keep on Jumping—we're getting Used to it."

THE HORSE SHOW

By J. Albert English, Rushville, Ind.

Talk about your street fairs and county fairs and sich, The Horse Show here in Rushville turned them all into the ditch. Our enterprising citizens who took such an active part To bring about this Hoss Show showed a willingness of heart.

To do all that they agreed to do in filling every branch, And to show no special privileges, but give all an equal chance. There never was a better show of Rush county's blooded stock, And while marching in procession filled the entire C. H. block.

I hope we'll have another one next year as good as this, And if so, you blooded stock men the show you shouldn't miss. So let's congratulate those gentlemen who took such active part And raised the premium money and gave this thing a start.

The judge was William Wilkin, a man who doesn't need a coach, For he's an impartial judge, who stands above reproach. His experience in this line of work is ample, and with care He tries to please the public and wants to do what's fair.

Mr. Wilkin owns Frank Allen, the great show horse of the ring. When it comes to style and beauty this horse is the real thing. He was driven here in Rushville by an expert at the game, Who always drives out winners, and Lon Hinton is his name.

Girl Who Succeeds

She has so much to do that she has no time for morbid thoughts.

She awakens cheerfully in the morning and closes her eyes thankfully at night.

She is considerate of the happiness of others and it is reflected back to her as a looking glass.

She never thinks for a moment that she is not attractive nor forgets to look as charming as possible.

She is her own, sweet, unaffected womanly self; therein lies the secret of her popularity of her success.

She is always willing to give suggestions that will help some less fortunate one over the bad places in life's journey.

She never permits herself to grow old, for by cultivating all the graces of heart, brain and body, age does not come to her.

She is ever ready to talk about a book, a picture or a play, rather than to permit herself to indulge in idle words about another.

She believes that life has some serious work to do and that the serious work lies very close to the home—every day duties and that kind words cost nothing.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

SEEDCORN TO BE SELECTED NOW

Easiest to Choose Good Ears When Husking of Grain is in Progress.

HOW TO GET BEST RESULTS

Care Should be Experienced in Sorting—Seed Chosen For Quality Rather Than Size.

In spite of predictions to the contrary earlier in the season, Rush county has good corn this year. As a rule the ears are well filled and the dry season has allowed it to mature perfectly. With the proper selection, every farmer should be able to secure a good supply of seed corn for his next year's planting. Now, it is held, is the time to make this selection. The farmer is urged not to wait until spring and then cull over the heterogeneous mass of ears in the crib, with the expectation of finding the best specimens. By doing the work this fall, when husking is in progress, when each ear is being handled, it is an easy matter to choose the best.

As corn is grown for both the grain and fodder, an ideal way of selecting seed is to do the work while in the field. In that way stalks as well as ears can be considered, for the position of the ear on the stalk, the vitality of the stock and number of ears on the stalk and all important factors. But for those who have not made this field selection there still remains the husking time and every farmer is urged to attend to this matter this fall.

Last spring in many sections of the country it was a serious problem where to get enough good seed corn. There is no need that the same condition will exist next spring.

Scientific farmers will not choose too large an ear, for there is a limit to the size of the ear that can be expected to ripen in an average season. In this country the ideal ear is nine and a half inches long. Many farmers think size is the most essential thing, but it is not. The best seed ears are strong and symmetrically developed, with straight rows of even sized, well dented kernels. They should be a little rougher than the average of the crop and the dent should run squarely across the kernels and there should be no hard or pointed margins.

After enough good ears have been selected for the next year's planting, it will be a good plan to go through these again and select the best ten specimens for show purposes. Place them in a good dry, well ventilated room away from the rats and mice, so they will thoroughly dry out. And of course the remainder of the seed ears are to be dried out in the same manner.

IMMEDIATE RELIEF

For Coughs, Colds Sore Throats and Hoarseness, by Using Hyomei.

When you catch cold you want to get rid of it as quickly as you can. You don't want to lie around the house for a week swallowing nauseating drugs. You know when you do this that you are not only making your own life miserable, but are a nuisance to everyone about you.

Why not avoid all this; why not relieve your cold in five minutes; why not cure it over night? You can do it by using Hyomei, the sure and guaranteed cure for Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Catarrh, Bronchitis and Asthma.

Hyomei is medicated and antiseptic air; you breathe it into the lungs through a small pocket inhaler, and its soothing influences as it passes over the inflamed membrane of the respiratory tracts, stops the mucus discharge, allays the inflammation, and the cold is cured. A complete Hyomei outfit costs $1.00 and F. B. Johnson & Co. will refund your money if it fails to cure.

HUSBAND AND WIFE CURED
I had a bad form of catarrh. My left nostril was closed entirely. There was also a constant dripping of blood from the right. I only used Hyomei a little over two weeks, and am now cured. My husband was also cured of catarrh and lung trouble two years ago by Hyomei.—Mrs. Harry Obney, Alliance, Ohio.

NIGHT PARADE FOR SATURDAY

Watson Will be Greeted by a Great

Torch Light Procession Upon Arrival.

TOWNSHIPS ARE NOW ACTIVE

As are City Republicans Arranging
the Biggest Event Ever—Committees Added.

In every nook of the county preparations are being made for the big Republican rally Saturday. And here in Rushville loyal supporters of the cause are working as they never did before.

Besides the monster parade and demonstration starting at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, a big night torch light procession will be given. All participants are requested to be at the Republican headquarters at 7 o'clock. The parade will form at that hour and march around until 7:45 o'clock when they will meet James E. Watson, who comes on a special car on the I. & C. line.

Instead of one flag, two will be given to the outside townships: one for the largest delegation and the other for the second largest.

Following is two committees added, one for the reception of Watson and the other for fireworks for the night meeting:

Fireworks Committee—Ray Lakin, Ed Sherman, Bela Mann, Scott Braun, Grant Gregg, Ab Denning, Guy Gordon, John Ferguson, Ben Goodin, Curt Lore.

Watson Reception Committee—Ed. Wolfe, J. P. Frazee, Frank Mullin, J. W. Tompkins, Prof. Williams, John Blackledge, Allen Daniels, J. B. Reeve, John Abercrombie, Ernest VanOsdol, Taylor Lakin, George C. Wyatt, Albert Aldridge, R. L. Innis, Peter Johnson, George Young, Dr. F. G. Hackleman, W. E. Havens.

AMUSEMENTS

At the Grand tonight a historical film, "Pocahontas" will be shown. It is a great film.

Victor's Royal Venetian Band will come for an engagement here tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock. Miss Grace Key Miller, soprano, is accompanied by the band in all her selections. This organization filled an engagement in this city one year ago, and those who heard them then, know that one cannot afford to miss such a musical treat.

Those who did not go to the Vaudet theater last night missed a rare treat. The comic film was especially good. "The Life of Abraham Lincoln" will be the subject of the film tonight. Miss Liddle will sing a new song.

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO.

There were things like this in the magazines—all the magazines:

"Listen to me, miss (or madam). I have something to say which will interest you. Do you want a perfect complexion? Don't move. Sit still in your chair. Cut out this coupon. Slip it into a stamped envelope and we will give you what you want by return of post."

"Why suffer? You have headache. We have the cure. We ask nothing better than to take away the one and give you the other."

"Let us lend you a beautiful diamond ring to wear until you are tired of it. When you are, we will take it back, and return you all but 5 per cent of your money."

"Don't come to us. Let us come to you and bring you something. You have always wanted health, wealth wisdom."

"We would like to give you some friendly advice. We don't want a cent for it."

"You are going to have a party, and you are worried. Don't worry. Just phone to us and we will arrange everything for you better than you could yourself, with no trouble to you and your servants."

There were so many splendid things to have, to wear and to eat advertised in the same kind, fatherly way, that I felt as if I had unconsciously yearned for each one of them more than for anything else in my life, and now it had been put into my head in all its fatal fascination, I couldn't possibly exist another day without sending for it, to one in that procession of

We had a number of these tropical birds, noble, self-sacrificing American advertisers. I felt, too, that if anything disagreeable should happen to me, like a railway or motor car accident, I could spend the rest of my existence lying down, and still the splendid things would come running to me, if I just phoned or flung a stamp into space.

I mentioned something of the sort to Sally. "I wonder they don't offer to choose your husband," said I. "I didn't know advertisements could be so interesting."

"What about your own?" she asked. "They're a hundred times quaintier." I thought hard about the Morning Post and The Queen, but couldn't remember anything extraordinary in the advertising line, and said so.

"Perhaps you, being English, don't see anything extraordinary about a clergyman's wife offering to exchange a canary bird for six months' subscription to Punch, or the widow of an officer earnestly desiring an idiot lady to board with her, or a decayed gentlewoman offering the public to give her five pounds, but we, being American, do," replied Sally. "Why, I'd rather read the advertisements in some of your morning papers and ladies' weeklies than I would eat."

"Talking of eating, it's lunchtime," said Potter. "There'll be a big menagerie feeding in the dining car, but there's no good waiting for it to finish, as then there'll be no food left."

So we took his suggestion, and there was a crowd, but he had secured a table for four, and we squeezed ourselves into the places.

I have traveled abroad with mother and Vic, where there were Americans in the dining car, and they have been cross because they didn't get served quickly, and they have said things. But in this car going to Newport you forgot what you had had last before the next course came, yet nobody seemed to mind. They were as patient as lambs and simply took what was given them when they could get it, although they looked as if they were used to everything very nice at home. I suppose it must have been because they were all Americans together, eating American things, with American waiters to wait upon them and no foreigners who ought to know they wouldn't stand that sort of nonsense, hanged if they would.

Some of Mrs. Ess Kay's servants had gone on before us, and some were in our train. Exactly how it was managed, I don't know; but things that would worry us into gray haired graves don't seem to bother Americans at all, and there was the motor waiting when we arrived at the end of our journey, with a private motor omnibus for the servants and luggage.

Sometimes it is rather a pretty sight at the station where you have to get out for Battlemead or for the village, when one of the best trains from town comes in, especially if mother or any one at other big places in the neighborhood should be having a house party. There are several rather good victorias with nice sleek horses, a handsome brougham or two, a motor car or two, to say nothing of dogcarts and phaetons. But it is a poor show compared to the scene at Newport. I felt suddenly as if I were at the theater and the curtain had just gone up on a brilliant new act.

There was a crowd of gorgeous carriages, and jet black varnish, gold and silver harness and horses' brown and chestnut backs all glittered blindingly in the sun. But there were even more motors than carriages, it seemed, or else they were more conspicuous, and many were being driven by beautiful girls in muslins such as we would wear to a garden party, with nothing on their pretty heads except their splendid hair, dressed everlastingly in the same way.

Now I saw Mrs. Ess Kay and Potter in their element. There was no suggestion that the people were no good enough for them here. Mrs. Ess Kay radiated smiles, bowing cordially right and left, sometimes even more cordially than her friends bowed in return. Potter was taking off his straw hat and waving it. They were delighted to see everybody, for everybody was somebody, and some, but not all, of the everybody were delighted to see them. Sally alone remained unmoved, and I was glad to have her to keep me in countenance in this new act, where I knew none of the players or what part I should be called upon to take by and by.

I had heard so much that was dazzling about Newport, which I had imagined a great white city by the sea, that the part I saw first after leaving the railway station was distinctly a blow. "This quiet, half asleep village the greatest watering place of America, perhaps of the world!" I said to myself, almost scornfully, but when we had bowed into Bellevue avenue, where Mrs. Ess Kay said that her cottage was, I began to understand.

I wasn't sure at first sight what I did think of the great splendid houses, with mere pocket handkerchief lawns such as people would have for suburban villas at home, but they gave me a tremendous impression of concentrated wealth. This seemed a place where everybody was rich, where millions were at a discount, and I thought—whatever else I did think—that it would be a place to stop away from unless you were happy—happy and strong and gay.

But there was one thing I was very sure of. The avenue itself was more full than our park in the topmost height of the season.

People don't look happy driving in the park, not even the pretty people. I have found that whenever I have been, and, though that isn't so very often yet, Vic says it is really and truly always the same.

The great beauties look bored, and some of them have their faces painted and the air of wearing transformations, but not one of the charming women driving up and down Bellevue avenue that afternoon looked bored and hardly any were painted. I never saw people appear to be so delighted with life and so thoroughly alive, as if the glorious sea air were frothing in their veins, like champagne.

In the park you don't see people laughing and talking to each other in carriages. They simply lean back on the cushions with an expression that seems to say, "This is the only thing I can think of to do, so I'm doing it just to kill time." Probably they don't really feel like that, but they look it. And as for the people who sit and watch or stand and wait, they've usually a strained expression in their eyes as if they were afraid of missing somebody or something of importance.

Piled up to his head with novels and magazines.

But here in Bellevue avenue everybody was smiling and chatting, and I noticed that the men weren't so preternaturally alert as the men in New York. Some had actually taken time to get fat, which, so far I'd had reason to suppose, was a thing that never happened to American men.

And somehow the young girls had the air of being a great deal more important than we are at home. You could tell from the very way they sat and held up their heads in the motor cars and dogcarts and other things that they thought the world was theirs and they were the people to know in it. One was driving a tandem, and she didn't look more than seventeen. I was glad when she bowed to Mrs. Ess Kay, because she was pretty and I made up my mind that I should like to know her.

"That's Cora Pitchley's stepdaughter, Carolyn," said Mrs. Ess Kay. "Do you remember Margaret Taylour telling anecdotes of Cora? She doesn't bother much with the girl. People are talking about them both rather a lot this year, they say."

"Carolyn," I repeated. "What a pretty name and how American sounding, somehow. Fancy her driving tandem," with only that they groom if anything should happen. She must be plucky. How old is she?"

"Eighteen," she was one of last October's buds."

"October's buds," I repeated. "It sounds poetical—but unseasonable." Potter answered with a laugh.

"Yes, we like things out of season in America, so we bring out most of our buds in October. Then they have the whole winter to bloom in, you know, before they're grafted on another stalk."

"Here comes Cora herself, now, in Tom Doremus' Electra," said Mrs. Ess Kay. "It must make Mrs. Van der Windt wild, his going so much with the Pitchley lot, as she can't stand them and would keep Cora and Carolyn out of everything in Newport if she could."

To be continued.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Rushville People Know How to Save it.

Many Rushville people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Rushville citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. Earnest Carpenter, 919 North Sexton street, Rushville, Ind., says: "My little boy's kidneys were weak and he could not control the secretions. This trouble had clung to him for some time and I was afraid it could not be removed, as the doctor had not succeeded in checking it. The child was very delicate, had a bad complexion and numerous other symptoms of unhealthy kidneys. I learned that Doan's Kidney Pills had cured many children of such troubles and I procured them at F. B. Johnson & Company's drug store. They soon checked the trouble. The child has a better appetite now, the color in his face is returning, his kidneys are becoming stronger and there is a general improvement in his condition."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

INDIANA POLITICS

Robert G. Tucker.

Indianapolis, Oct. 28.—It was learned today from a reliable source that James E. Watson and Senator Beveridge have a thorough understanding on political matters; that several weeks ago they had a meeting here at which Watson told Beveridge he is not a candidate for the senate himself and that he will not be. Watson told the senator, it is said, that he will favor his re-election. Beveridge is said to have replied that he would have supported Watson whether or not the latter had made the promise to him that he would not make the race against him. Those who know of this conference say that it removes all doubt as to where the next state administration will stand if Watson is elected, and that it takes the props from under the oft-repeated story that Watson is to support Hanly for the senate. So far as Governor Hanly is concerned it was declared emphatically today by one of his very close friends that he has no idea of running for the senate, as he realizes that it would take a long time to build up an organization with which he could hope to defeat either Senator Beveridge or Senator Hemenway.

More Watson money appeared on the betting boards today. Odds of 10 to 9 are no longer offered on Marshall. Reports from the country districts are said to have caused a change in the betting. Not only has all the 10 to 9 money on Marshall been taken, but the Watson men came to the front with even money on him, for the first time in two weeks. At the Denison House a bet of $6,000 to $6,000 that Marshall will be elected, has been posted. The Republican leaders assert that they have reliable information that the brewery combine is furnishing most of the money on Marshall on the local betting boards and that the odds are being offered on him for the purpose of creating the impression that he is in the lead. Proprietors of the betting boards say that most of the Watson money is coming from the country districts.

The Republican managers are making preparations for a great demonstration at Rushville Saturday. The speakers will be John L. Griffiths, who has spoken at the closing rally there for several campaigns, and James E. Watson, who will be heard in his home town for the first time during the campaign. Republicans are expecting Rush county to give him an enthusiastic reception.

Taken Back to New York.
Dayton, O., Oct. 28.—Earl Broughton Brandenburg of Cleveland letter fame, who has been under bond in this city for several days, appeared in the police court, when his bond was raised from $500 to $2,500, and signed by his attorney. He left here today for New York in charge of a detective who has been here several days.

Formal orders have been issued assigning the battleship Maine to duty as flagship of the third squadron of the Atlantic battleship fleet.

There has been some talk of a blockade of the ports of Venezuela by Holland.

John Mitchell has not written any word to the miners or other organized workmen that he favors the election of Bryan. That New York World telegram is a campaign fake. Mitchell has nailed the lie. Few believed it and all rejoice in its denial by Mr. Mitchell. He is a Democrat. Gompers has always been a mugwump. It is no table that the miners and railroad men of the land—the best organized workmen of the country—are going to vote this year for Taft, as they should for Watson, believing truly that the election of Bryan would mean less work and pay for many mouths for all who work—and we are all wage earners.

What has Bryan ever done for his country?

Judge Taft does not have to run away from his record. His record on the bench and as secretary of war is his strength.

TIME TO WAKE UP

Posterity Will Condemn Our Destruction of the Birds.

New York, Oct. 28.—William Dutcher, president of the National Association of Audubon Societies, declared at the annual meeting of the association in the American Museum of Natural History, that Americans were robbing posterity and permitting an annual crop loss of $300,000,000, due to destruction of insect-eating birds. He called for a fund to fight the commercial bird-killers in every state legislature. "If we permit the heritage of wild birds that still exist to be further wasted and destroyed, we are robbing our children," Mr. Dutcher told the delegates. "We do not wish our children to feel about us as we do about our fathers, who permitted the extinction of the bison and the wild pigeon. In the matter of bird legislation there is no resting place; the only price of satisfactory bird protection is eternal watching of legislatures, for in an unguarded moment an amendment may be passed that will undo the work of years."

MONTGOMERY GUILTY

Verdict Against Bank Cashier in Federal Court at Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 28.—William Montgomery, former cashier of the defunct Allegheny National bank, which failed some time ago for over $1,000,000, who was placed on trial on two indictments, charging the embezzlement and abstraction of $450,000, was found guilty as indicted by a jury in the United States district court.

Montgomery was immediately placed on trial on a third and last indictment, charging him with the misapplication of $144,000 in bonds.

The Mayflower Still Afloat.

New York, Oct. 28.—For several weeks after she was abandoned, if not still, the old cup defender Mayflower continued to ride the waves. The fruiter Vincenzo di Giorgio, which has arrived from Jamaica, reports having sighted her on Oct. 15, about 150 miles southeast of Hatteras. She is reported to be in good condition except for the loss of her masts, which were carried away in the hurricane that led to her abandonment at sea by her adventurous crew of former Harvard students, who had fitted her out for a treasure hunt.

Preparing for Big Reception.

Amoy, Oct. 28.—The Chinese government has set aside the sum of 400,000 taels (United States gold, $288,000), to meet the expenses of entertaining the battleship squadron during its visit. The committee in charge of the arrangements has stated that the Pekin government has signified its willingness to make an additional appropriation should the original appropriation prove inadequate. Great interest is shown in the coming of the fleet, which is due to arrive tomorrow.

Leaves Medicine for Ministry.

Laporte, Ind., Oct. 28.—Dr. C. S. Mack, corner of Laporte county, has announced his resignation from that office and his retirement from the practice of medicine, in order to enter the ministry. Dr. Mack, who formerly held the chair of materia medica and therapeutics at the University of Michigan, and who became known throughout the country through the Guinness case, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Swedenborgian church at Toledo, O.

The Peuren Matter Referred.

New York, Oct. 28.—An effort to secure freedom without the formality of further hearings for Jan Janoff Pour-en, the Russian refugee, accused of various crimes and under detention pending decision upon the Russian government's application for his extradition, came to naught through a decision by Judge Holt in the United States court here, referring the matter back to the United States commission.

The Countess Szechenyi, formerly Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, has given birth to a daughter at Budapest.

"American business has been pounded too much. Denunciation of business has gone on until the black flag has been raised against all merchantmen that sail the seas of trade. I am against this political piracy as much as I am against business piracy. Where there are abuses we are correcting them; where there are bad business men we are punishing them; where there are rotten securities we are exposing them. The extremists who would stay our hands from this work of purification and punishment are bad; but those other extremists, who would wreck all business in the attempt to correct a few evils, are worse. And this latter is precisely what the opposition proposes to do with business."—Senator Beveridge.

Despite all efforts to keep it in the background, Bryanism is really the backbone of the campaign.

CURTIS TELLING
TALE OF FINANCE

Wall Street Secrets Likely to Come Out.

HOW THE BIG GAME IS PLAYED

Among the Revelations Made by Former President Curtis of the Busted Bank of North America, Who Promises to Come Through With the Whole Rotten Story, Is That in the Capacity of Cashier, Before He Had Qualified for President, He Had Over-Certified Checks to the Amount of $40,000,000.

New York, Oct. 28.—The expected split between Charles W. Morse, bank promoter, financier and "ice trust" organizer, and Alfred H. Curtis, president of the National Bank of North America, both of whom are under indictments charging them jointly with violation of the national banking laws, came with the swearing in of Curtis as the first witness for the defense in the trial before Judge Hough in the United States court here. Before the beginning of Mr. Curtis's examination the court had heard arguments on behalf of both defendants on motions to dismiss the indictments, and had yielded on a few minor points, dismissing the counts charging conspiracy and misappropriation in one specific instance, but maintaining fifty-five counts charging over-certification, making of false reports, misapplication and the use of funds of depositors for speculative purposes.

Before calling the former president of the suspended Bank of North America to the stand in his own behalf, former Judge W. M. K. Olcott, Curtis's attorney, announced that he had persuaded his client "to tell the facts."

"My client hopes," said he, "that his testimony will not injure any of the directors or officers who had to do with the management of the affairs of the Bank of North America. It is not his purpose to point his finger at any one individual and say, 'You did it, not I.' He will, however, tell the facts and state things as they really happened."

Mr. Curtis began his testimony by relating his early career in the banking business. He had started at fourteen, in the office of a Wall street broker, he said, graduating ten years later to a clerkship in the Bank of the State of New York, the institution subsequently purchased by Morse and merged with the Bank of North America. There he had advanced through the various grades to the position of cashier, in which capacity he had over-certified checks to the amount of $40,000,000 he declared.

Morse was at the time vice president and director of the bank. During an absence abroad Mr. Morse was deposited by President Edwards. Upon his return he obtained control of the bank by purchasing a majority of the stock, Mr. Curtis recounted, and after ousting Edwards, installed Curtis as president. Morse, the witness testified, carried a balance of between $100,000 and $150,000 with the bank, and had brought a great many customers and depositors to it. When the Carroll loan on 4,000 shares of ice had come up for renewal in the name of Braun, of Primrose & Braun, Mr. Morse had instructed him, the witness said, to put it through, telling him he would stand back of it and guarantee it. At the time, Curtis testified, he supposed Morse to be a very rich man, having heard his wealth estimated at $22,000,000. It was therefore not extraordinary, he thought, that he should accept Morse's guarantee as fully protective.

The witness then went into details relative to the transaction whereby 2,000 of the 4,000 shares of ice securities held by the bank had been sold to Mrs. Gelshenen and later disposed of by her at a profit of $24,580. The remaining 2,000 shares had also netted a profit of $24,580, and this Mr. Morse had turned into the bank, refusing to accept it for himself, although clearly entitled to it.

Other loans with ice stock as collateral had been made by the witness, he declared, notably those to Davidson Brown, but always after Morse had signified that he stood back of them. An adjournment for the day was taken at this point.

Waiting for the Next Step.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Diplomats together with state department officials are wondering just what is to be Holland's next step in her dealings with Venezuela, now that President Castro has declined to revoke his decree of May 14, prohibiting the trans-shipment of goods for Venezuelan ports at Curacao. Holland's latest note demanding the revocation of that decree generally has been understood to be an ultimatum by Holland, and Nov. 1 was set down as the limit of time in which she expected Venezuela to take favorable action on her demand. That time is now near at hand.

GIRL TOOK THE COUNT, BUT A

Latest Stunt of Jim Worth is the Best Thing That he Ever Pulled Off.

HE WAS LIONIZED IN DENVER

And Dined by Standard Oil Magnate Who Was Looking for a Titled Son-in-Law.

Next to Cyrano de Bergerac possibly no other man in history or in this part of the country has essayed so many different roles, and got away with them any better than has our own Col. James Worth. He has been in the limelight on so many occasions that now he carries in his northeast vestpocket a pair of smoked glasses to wear when the light is thrown on him.

He has successfully been the millionaire bachelor in quest of a wife, and got more publicity in this role than the ivory soap factory gets in a year for $500,000. Then again he was a tramp, roaming from town to hamlet along the railroad, claiming to represent an Eastern magazine, making a sociological study of conditions to write an exhaustive report of same. In Southern Colorado he is known as a Maine congressman; in Missouri as a rich Mexico mine owner; in Indiana as the Joplin millionaire; in Ohio as a theatrical magnate; around Chicago as the principal owner of the Barnum & Bailey circus; in fact he can go into a community and with his ready wit and keen perception, his knowledge of human nature and the "front" he throws up, and pass off as most any individual that suits his fancy.

But his latest stunt is playing the role of a count. It would be almost impossible for one to believe that an individual had the nerve displayed by Col. Worth in passing off as a count, but eye witnesses tell the story. It was in Denver during the Democratic national convention. And Mrs. Mary Murphy, sister of Mrs. George Wingerter, who returned to Denver this week after a visit here, told the story. Accompanied by several other ladies she went to the leading hotel to see the crowd of celebrities congregate to talk politics. A little group approached within a few feet of their party and they heard an elderly gentleman ask his wife if it did not seem that their daughter was unusually late in arriving. The third party was a flashy dressed individual and appeared to be rather reserved. Soon the daughter arrived and with all the officiousness of an ambitious father, the elderly gentleman bowed, scraped, kow-towed and salaamed in presenting his daughter saying: "I want you to meet the count."

Soon the parents left—showing good American business sense leaving the count and daughter together. After a while the count suggested to his newly introduced friend that they walk out on the balcony. No sooner had they stepped out on the balcony when George Campbell of this city came wobbling through the lobby. Mrs. Murphy called to him. After a brief exchange of greetings Mrs. Murphy hastened to tell Mr. Campbell that she had just seen a real, live count, the first one she ever seen in her life. While she was yet talking about the count he walked in. "There he is now" exclaimed Mrs. Murphy. Mr. Campbell turned around and almost rolled on the floor in laughter when he saw the count was none other than our own Jim Worth.

Worth was laying it off to the girl and putting it on thick as they strolled through the corridor. The girl was a daughter of Col. Noble, one of the Standard Oil magnets and a personal friend of John D. Rockefeller. Worth was passing himself off as Count Lamasham of Sweden. When asked about the incident today he laughed and said he had the best time of his life with that "count trick." He changed clothes and jewelry six times during the evening and was a guest of honor at a champagne dinner.

Russia consumes five times as much Chinese tea as the United States.

CLEVE RScheme TO GET MANY DRINKS

Many Tramps Quench Their Thirst by the Postage Stamp Trick—Several Others Used.

TRADES THEM FOR WHISKEY

All sorts of tricks and schemes are resorted to by the habitual drinkers. One common around here is the four cent method. The man gets four cents together in some manner and then goes around and begs for the extra cent to make a nickel so that he can buy a sandwich. Many pennies can be gathered up in a day in this way. When the beggar gets the penny to make his five cents he sticks it down in his pocket and starts out to make another nickel.

Another scheme is heard from New Castle:

If a hard looking individual solicits you for a stamp that he must have "to send an important letter," and if your heart is moved, follow Mark Twain's advice. "Don't do it," says the New Castle Tribune. He isn't sending any letter. He gathers up the stamps, and when he has five of them he goes to a saloon and invests in some liquor.

The man has worked the gag in a number of neighboring towns and has been most successful. Few persons are willing to consider themselves to be so hard hearted as to refuse a man a postage stamp, and consequently the individual has been able to quench his thirst with comfortable regularity.

DANDRUFF

An Easy Task to Cure It When You Know How.

There are three kinds of dandruff cures:

- Good dandruff cures.
- Bad dandruff cures.
- And plain liquid junk.

The first is good to put on the head; the second is good to keep off the head; and the third is good to flush out the sewer.

The owners of good dandruff cures say our remedy will cure you in two weeks or money back.

The owners of bad dandruff cures guarantee nothing, but spend their money howling fake at the good dandruff cures, which policy they consider is a clever method of enticing the shekels from the unwary.

Parisian Sage is a good dandruff cure. It is guaranteed by F. B. Johnson & Co. to cure dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

It kills the dandruff microbes, it promotes a new growth of hair, it makes hair soft and luxuriant, and is without doubt the most pleasant and invigorating hair dressing made today.

To every reader of the Daily Republican, both man and woman, we want to say these few words:

If you have tried other dandruff cures, hair restorers, and have failed to receive and benefit from them, don't give up hope, try Parisian Sage at our risk.

F. B. Johnson & Co. will sell you a large bottle for 50 cents with a money back guarantee if it does not do as advertised.

The Books Are Opened!

Read! Meditate! Figure! A local paper has asked that the county books be opened. It has intimated that the disclosures might be startling. Such has been the case.

The county tax levy is less than 50 cents on the $100 and is levied equally throughout the county. The township trustee, together with his advisory board, levies the tax in his township, and he and they are responsible for the levy.

The table below shows the levy in each of the townships, seven of which are under Republican rule and five under Democratic rule. From the Democratic wail we would expect the lowest rate in the Democratic townships.

What does the record show?

The average rate of taxes in the five Democratic townships levied last September is 21 11/14 cents higher than the average in the seven Republican townships.

For the 1907 the average in the Democratic townships was 24 3/7 cents higher than in the Republican townships.

For 1906 the Democratic townships asked 36 39/70 cents on the hundred dollars MORE than the Republican townships, and for 1905 they were 23 1/5 cents higher.

Does this prove Democratic economy and Republican extravagance?

You who live in Democratic townships can, by a little calculation, find exactly what Democracy in your township has cost you Notice the following table carefully and ask your Democratic neighbor to explain. Hold him to the records.

It Won't Happen Again

Last year we thought we could supply the demand on our ANTI GRIP TABLETS but before the winter passed we found we had figured too low. We were compelled to refuse people who asked for them, and no doubt lost a few customers but we promise to have plenty this season as we have enough to supply twice the demand of last year.
